A case study analysis requires you to investigate a business problem, examine the alternative solutions, and propose the most effective solution using supporting evidence. London: Trubner & Co.Why APA Is Not Always the Right Citation TypeAPA Style works well for the following disciplines:Psychology Sociology Linguistics Nursing Business Other, related, disciplines also use APA Style. Is any component from the analysis missing? Have you provided solid evidence? Modern Man in Search of a Soul. Identify two to five key problems. Who is responsible for them? Citation systems like the APA one or the Chicago style can help you easily bring your papers or professional writings up to standard.Below, we explore the APA type of citation and other alternatives that you can use to make your work free of plagiarism.What is APA Citation Style?The APA citation style is one of three citation styles which are in wide use in universities and other professional communities. What should be done and who should do it? Demonstrate that you have researched the problems in this case study. For example, when referring to a work from 1960 by the psychologist Abraham Maslow, we would write:Maslow (1960) found that "the highest stage of human psychological health occurs in the state of self-actualization" (p. View a Sample CC0/StockSnap/Pixabay In academia and other professional fields, much of the work that goes on is strictly intellectual. Consider strong supporting evidence, pros, and cons. Support this solution with solid evidence, such as: Concepts from class (text readings, discussions, lectures) Outside research Personal experience (anecdotes) Determine and discuss specific strategies for accomplishing the proposed solution. Preparing the Case Before you begin writing, follow these guidelines to help you prepare and understand the case study: Take notes, highlight relevant facts, underline key problems. Outline the various pieces of the case study that you are focusing on. You should title it "References" so that it's clear that the main arguments have ended and you are now listing references.In the reference list, you should follow APA Style rules, including the following:Arrange author listings in alphabetical order Invert the authors' names so that the last name is read first Titles for works cited should be given in full, whether books, journals, or other sources Specify the publisher and location where the work was published Observing these rules, we can list a book by the social scientist Carl Jung as follows:Jung, C. Proper citation begins with in-text citations. APA Reference ListAt the end of an academic work, journal writing, or other such professional work, it is necessary to include a list of all works that have been referenced in the body. In such areas, ideas matter, and copying another's ideas without acknowledging the source can land the practitioner in trouble. There are, however, disciplines where alternative citation styles are more appropriate. State why these parts of the case study are or are not working well. Formulate and include a thesis statement, summarizing the outcome of your analysis in 1-2 sentences. Such a secondary source could be, for example, a book, guide, newspaper article, published report, or other publication.References to earlier research, for example from academic journals, must use the past tense. After you have composed the first draft of your case study analysis, read through it to check for any gaps or inconsistencies in content or structure: Is your thesis statement clear and direct? Is this solution realistic? These are references to source materials which you have chosen to include in the body of your paper or text.In APA Style, you must reference the author's last name and the source material's publication year when making reference to a secondary source. This has happened to many unsuspecting academics. Review course readings, discussions, outside research, your experience. Evaluate these pieces by discussing what is working and what is not working. Explain why this solution was chosen. If in doubt, you can check with the publisher or editor of the journal or other publication for which you are writing.
